ELECTION SIGNIFICANT.

Results of Recent Election Denote Moral Revolution.

Machine Politics and Official Corruption Dealt telling blow.

In a speech, delivered just before the recent election Joseph Folk, Missouri's great Governor, delivered this comforting prophecy, "A moral revolution is being wrought in the conscience of mankind." Historic revolutions, moral or political like volcanic eruptions are sudden and spectacular in their culmination, but alike they must first pass through a long period of silent preparation which discloses itself only to the most profound and patient student. Folk himself a product of this revolution, was prepared to measure the temper of the people in advance of its expression at an election the most significant ever held in the United States. Forces working toward a moral revolution in the conscience of mankind, as Folk so eloquently and aptly expresses it, arose from the maximum swing of the pendulum to the bad. The movement toward a moral revolution had no wise man for its sponsor and no brotherhood of moralists for its nurses, but as the multitude holds no convention before fleeing to shelter from the bursting storm this protest against intolerable moral obliquity in the commercial and political world had its origin in the common convictions of mankind.

The movement for cleaner business methods and purer politics received a powerful impetus from the accession of Theodore Roosevelt to the Presidency. Not more honest but far bolder and more fearless than his illustrious predecessor he became known at once as a man who does things and his conduct inspired the best element of society to hope and action. The condition of the social firmament may be known by the leaders it cast up. The five great men of the country to-day are Roosevelt, Taft, Root, Folk and Jerome, every one fit for a king, if kings were the fashion on this side of the sea. That these five fearless and incorruptible men are the best known best loved and most trusted citizens of the republic proves that a revolution is being wrought in the conscience of mankind. With the beef thieves, the railroad thieves, the insurance thieves already before the inquisition, and with the standard old thieves, the tobacco thieves and the other rich scoundrels listening, with trembling knees for a call to come to court there is indeed promise of a revolution in the ethics of the age. The execution of the law, disastrous as it is to the big thief's profession is not so much his dread. It is public opinion that withers and bights. It is not so much the pruning of salaries and dividends that the McCordys and Hydes and Depews and Rockefeller dreads as the scorn and contempt of public opinion. The crafty Carnegie saw the storm approaching and Dick Turpin like, set about giving back to the people the wealth of which he had robbed them. Poor old John Rockefeller whose happiness no inmate of an almshouse should envy pleaded guilty to robbing his countrymen and voluntarily offered to pay a fine of ten million of dollars, and his withered soul must have burnt to the core when the holiest churchmen of the country cried out against slimming their hands with his filthy cash.

The demand for clean business methods follows as a matter of course the demand for clean methods in politics. The result of the recent election leaves no room to doubt the temper of the American people in the matter of cleaner politics as a part of the revolution being wrought in the conscience of mankind. In New York City where the skeleton hand of the senile Platt still held the throttle of the Republican machine and Tammany bought and bullied and stole for the Democrats the clean handed if eccentric Hearst won out with the mostlert following that even elected a third party ticket to office. True the Tammany thieves claim to have defeated Hearst, but of his election there can be no doubt. Such was the sentiment in favor of clean politics that the best citizens of the city joined forces with the impatient Socialists and fiery anarchist to select a clean but uncertain mayor. Jerome, whose honesty and fearlessness as district attorney had made for him a national reputation was refused a re-nomination by the Democratic machine, accepted a place on the Republican ticket and won, though his associate candidates were third in the race. Ohio, which a year ago gave Roosevelt a majority in excess of a quarter of a million, at the recent election gave a Democratic candidate for Governor fifty thousand majority. The vote in Ohio was not against the Republican party but against Foraker and Cox and their machine.

The funeral of Quayism brought out an enormous crowd in Pennsylvania election day. Even Memphis, afraid of the nigger as she is, smashed the Democratic machine into smithereens election day. Louisville alone of all the gang and graft cursed cities of the country feasted on a banquet of infamy election night. Much honor is due the brave citizens of that city who made heroic sacrifices to save Louisville from the odium of being the lone city in the land where the thugs, thieves, gamblers and dance hall devotees voted to a man for the successful candidates for city offices.

In the elections everywhere this year it was apparent that the people were restless, and impatient of political and industrial system rotten to the core but made in a measure respectable by uses and age, and the events of November the 7th will lend a powerful impetus to the moral revolution being wrought in the conscience of mankind.

Dismissed from Grand Jury.

James Lanham, of Fordsville, who was empaneled as a member of the grand jury one convening of circuit court Monday was dismissed Wednesday morning on complaint of the rest of the jury. The cause of his removal was drunkenness while in discharge of his duties as a grand juror. The province of the grand jury under the law is to apprehend crime and prefer charges or indictments against criminals or those whom there are reasonable grounds for believing have violated the penal laws and the action of the court in removing men from the grand jury who unfit themselves for duty by imbibing too freely of fire-water should be commended by every one.

Lanham has been in the public eye before. Two or three years ago he left his wife and eloped with an eighteen year old girl. He returned in a few months, however, and made up with his wife and is now living with her.

An Enjoyable Evening.

Dr. and Mrs. A. F. Stanley entertained quite a number of Hartford's young folks with tacky party at the Commercial Hotel last Friday evening in honor of their daughter Miss Marie Graves, of Perry, Oklahoma. Light refreshments were served and all spent a delightful evening. There were sharp contests for the prizes offered for the tackiest girl and boy present.

Raymer Tinsley won the prize as the tackiest boy and Elsie Matthews was awarded the prize as tackiest girl.

Those present were Misses. Anna Eliza Keown, Mary Elizabeth Marks, Elsie Matthews, Ruth Riley, Alice Keown, Sarah Keown, Alma Riley, Bera Bean, Arbye Brown, Marie Graves, Messrs. Ney Foster, Raymer Tinsley, Martin Thomas, Otto Martin, Douglas Felix, Roy Heavrin, John J. Williams, Allison Barnett, Bobbie Bennett and Byron Foster.

PANAMA CANAL.

Advisory Board Decides in Favor of the Sea Level Plan

Unfinished French Work of fifteen Miles Procured by the United States.

[Special to THE REPUBLICAN.] Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—The International Board of consulting Engineers who are acting in advisory capacity to the Panama Canal Commission voted this week on the subject of the type of canal to be adopted. Their decision was in favor of a Sea level canal and the work can proceed with more rapidity. But up to date there has been a great deal done, how much very few people in the United States seems to know or care. There has been a great deal of criticism of the canal commission for not proceeding faster. But the fact is that the work has been pushed as rapidly as possible considering the number of changes in the commission and engineer that have been necessary.

The decision as to the type of canal marks an important period in the work and is just as well to consider at this moment what has already been accomplished. In the first place the isthmus has been cleaned up as it was never thought possible to do it. In fact the work of the sanitary corps under Col. Groges has been as important, as the digging of the canal itself. For the sanitation of the Isthmus has made it a habitable strip. The French tried to do the canal work without the preliminary sanitation and failed utterly. Of course partisan critics will profess themselves skeptical of the amount of work actually done. But the records of the war Department state the following as some of the things accomplished. A sewer system has been advised for the town of Panama and is half completed. The town is being paved with brick for the easier cleaning and policing, and there has been installed a complete system of water works so that for the first time in three centuries the inhabitants will have good drainage and a pure drinking supply. There will be three other water systems necessary, one for the Culebra, one Empire and a third for Cristobal and Colon. All these are under way. By cleaning the towns and killing the mosquitoes, the yellow fever cases have been reduced from 61 in July to 3 in October. There are now 13,000 laborers on the ground and the rate of sickness is only 25 per 1,000 which would be considered moderate in a northern climate.

In the line of actual construction the United States inherited the unfinished French work which consisted of fifteen miles of sea level canal at the North end and five miles at the South. The work has eaten into the great Culebra Hill to a point 140 feet above sea level. This hill is 340 feet high and ten miles wide and has been the great bugbear of a canal line at Panama. There are 20 steam shovels now on the ground and sixty more ordered or on their way to the scene of the work. The Panama railway has been double tracked with the exception of nine miles which will soon be doubled also. This is not a bad showing for the work up to date. There has been a deal of opposition to the canal from the railroad interest which will of course be affected by it and there probably will be a great many more calamity howls to the effect that it is an engineering impossibility. But one can consider the progress made with a great deal of satisfaction and the assurance that in about five years the work will be completed.

Christians, Attention.

It is desired that the friends of temperance, the enemies of the liquor traffic, without regard to their political affiliation or their religious beliefs, shall meet at 1 o'clock

p. m. on Saturday, December 9, 1905, at the Baptist Church in Hartford for the purpose of organizing a County Anti Saloon League. Said League shall be as all of them are, strictly non-partisan and nonsectarian. Its aim to be "the repression and the ultimate suppression of the beverage liquor traffic." Its motto: "The Saloon must go." Its present urgent business, the enactment by the General Assembly, which soon meets, of salutary temperance measures. Date: 1 o'clock p. m. ## A. S. OF E. RALLEY.

Secretary Sharp Makes Strong Plea For Co-Operation of Farmers.

Everybody should go to Beaver Dam Saturday, November 25, to the great gathering of the A. S. of E. forces and hear the questions now confronting the American farmers, ably discussed by the Hon. E. L. Davenport, President of the Dark Tobacco Growers Association, branch of the A. S. of E.

The United Mine Workers are invited to be present and to have their speakers address the people in the forenoon.

This will be a great day for Beaver Dam, as the people generally, are becoming thoroughly aroused to the importance of farmers organization.

Business men, along all legitimate lines, are coming to realize more fully than ever before that their success depends, in a great measure, upon the ability of the farmers to secure profitable prices for their products. Therefore, are willing to co-operate with us in our efforts to secure said results.

We are informed that a tobacco trust representative, of Owensboro, Ky., is threatening to invade our country in a few days for the purpose of buying tobacco. Of course they will attempt, as usual, to buy a few choice crops in the different communities from influential farmers, and thereby cause a rush of tobacco to the Owensboro market. Farmers, think for a moment about the prices you have received for several year past by just such schemes as this being worked. Also, don't you know when these oily tongued representatives of the trust come to your barns and offer, you better prices than usual, that it is done for the purpose of buying your influence and using the same against your neighbors who are organized for the purpose of securing profitable prices not only for tobacco, but for all products of the farm.

Brother farmer, consider well whether or not when you put your tobacco the upon market that you are helping the trust to make prices on your crops instead of helping to inaugurate the doctrine of controlled marketing and price making by farmers. Don't accept a few dollars above old trust price as an inducement to put your tobacco on the market against the plan of A. S. of E. and thereby help to continue trust price conditions.

M. F. SHARP, Secretary.

R. B. Martin to the People.

It will be impossible for me to see individually and thank the people of Ohio county for the honor bestowed on me at the recent election when I was by a handsome majority elected Sheriff of the good county of Ohio hence I take this means of saying to you all from the depth of my heart; I thank you; and to each and every one I promise faithful friendship and strict adherence to my duties encumbered upon me by the office to which you elected me.

To my neighbors and friends all over the county who arose above political ties and aided me and especially to the people of my home, Cromwell, where scores of my life-long neighbors voted for me regardless of political influence; I say; may you live long and prosper and may the richest blessing of life be yours.

The universal kind and courteous treatment shown me by the various families with whom I stopped during my canvass is to me a living monument of noble housewives and most excellent husbandry of which Ohio county can with pride boast and will live long in my memory.

MAKING CELLULOID.

Process Is Secret and Injurious
To Health of Workmen.

Celluloid is a chemical substance made mainly of paper and crude camphor to imitate ivory, tortoise shell, coral, amber, glass, &c. Considerable secrecy is maintained by the makers of celluloid as to their respective methods of manufacture but apart from dye stuffs and acid it may be said to consist of about equal quantities of paper and camphor.

The process of its making is not a complicated one, although it is one that is highly injurious to the health of those employed in handling the ingredients. The working men are compelled to wear clothing of rubber and invariably bear traces of the strong action of the chemicals used, their faces operation corse-like and ghastly. The first operation in the manufacture of celluloid is the preparation of the paper, which is composed of cotton and birch wood.

This made it is wound upon a hollow spindle holding several hundred yards in length. A roll of the paper is slowly unwound being saturated with a mixture of five parts of sulphuric acid and two parts of nitric acid which falls upon it in a fine spray. This changes the celluloid of the paper into propylid guncotton. The excess of the acid is expelled by pressure and the papers washed. It is then ground to a pulp and bleached.

After thoroughly drying the pulp there is added to it a proportion of camphor. This done by carefully weighing, mixing the two ingredients thoroughly and pressing in canvas jackets between plates. It is at this point that the dye matter is added to make the celluloid any desired color. In the next operation the mixture is subjected to the grinding and pressure of masticators. These machines are simply heavy iron rollers about four feet long, geared together and run inward. As the grinders the mass become more and more homogeneous and nearer to the finished appearance of celluloid.

It is then taken from the masticators in the form of huge sheets, eight feet by four feet in size and one inch thick. These sheets are piled one on top of the other until they fill a heavy iron box, which latter is run under a steam heated hydraulic press, where it remains under enormous pressure for about two hours. This is done for the purpose of welding the superimposed sheets together in the form of a solid cake.

On removal the big celluloid cake is cut into sheets of the desired thickness. This may vary from one-thousandth of an inch to a full inch or more according to the variety of goods into which the material is to be worked. After cutting the sheet are hung up in drying rooms six or seven months to "season;" celluloid having the peculiar warping qualities of wood if worked up without due regard to this fact.

From the seasoning rooms the sheets go to the various departments of the factory. Those taken to the novelty department are cut, turned and pressed into any number of fancy articles. The smaller articles are cut out of the sheets of celluloid while cold, then dipped into cold water, bent and shaped, and plunged into cold water again to retain their shape. The comb manufacture is simpler than with hard rubber. The teeth are stamped out with dies either by hand or machinery, and are then polished with cold water and pumice stone. Combs are cut from sheets of "amber," "tortoise shells" and "Ivory" celluloid. All three of these compositions are carefully made, and the imitations of the genuine substance are so faithful as frequently to pass through the hands of experts undetected.

MALE CANARY

Laid Eggs While Female Bird
Sang a Sweet Song.

[St. Louis City (Va.) Cor. New York World.]

When Mrs. Charles Ball received from a Burlington friend four years ago a fine young canary, she had no thought that she had accepted a bird of the female gender. It was a brilliantly colored; cocky youngster and when it gave voice in lusty tones to warbling carols, she named it Bruno. This week its name was changed to brunette, and this is the reason why:

Early in the summer, Mrs. Ball received a visit from her sister, Mrs. Luther Putman, of Albany, who came to spend the summer, and brought with her her pet canary, Betsy. The mite of feathered animation didn't pretend to sing much and she wasn't particularly beautiful but she was very dear to her mistress just the same.

Mrs. Putman had heard of Bruno, and shortly after her arrival she had a conference with Mrs. Ball. She told her host that she had long wanted a husband for Betsy, but until she laid eyes on Bruno she had never seen a bird she thought worthy of her pet. She was she said, sure the couple would be happy together, even if it was necessary to divorce then at the end of her visit, and so she proposed that they be placed in a big wooden cage and allowed to nest.

The canaries took to the scheme amazingly. Bruno sang loud and long, and bossed Mrs. Betsy about in true husband fashion as she gathered two twigs and twine and horse-hairs placed in the cage by the house hold plot. He didn't overwork himself, but he proved a splendid architect, and after two week of labor and song the coziest kind of a nest, lined with hair and feathers, was ready for occupation.

Then a strange thing happened. By all laws of Featherland Mrs. Betsy—she refused to answer to the name Mrs. Bruno—should have taken up her abode in the comfortable nest, but, instead, she hopped up on a perch, wiggled her neck down into her chest and refused to do more than look pleasant. Bruno hopped into the nest and accepted the situation complacently, but Mrs. Betsy was so restless that she was given another cage.

In the morning Mrs. Ball received the shock of her life, for in the next lay a tiny egg. She didn't want to believe her eyes, but she had to. The next day there were two eggs, the next five. Two weeks later five downy youngsters came into the world and Mrs. Betsy broke into wild song. Bruno didn't sing a note. Mrs. Putman chuckled.

"You needn't laugh," said Mrs. Ball. "If Bruno is a lady you Betsy must be a gentleman."

Value of Butterflies.

When our juniors see the common white cabbage and sulphur wing butterflies, or even the superb Monarch and gorgeous Ajax swallowtails flitting through the fields or at times city streets they perhaps never give thought to the fact that butterflies may be of commercial value. But such is the case. Some of our domestic butterflies on account of rarity, more than beauty, command prices from one to several dollars, which collectors will gladly pay to insure the completeness of their cabinet. Big prices are paid for some of the magnificent butterflies of the Morpho and Papilio genera, which are rainbow hues in colors and span five feet in wings. These flourish in tropical countries, and it is often necessary for museums to send out special expeditions for them. They range from $10 to $100 in value.

Are the Eggs Found by Smith and They Appear to be all Right.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

Glasgow, Ky., Nov. 19.—Three eggs 53 years old are owned by W. M. Smith, of Hardyville, Hart county.

Mr. Smith was repairing a house built 53 years ago when he came across three eggs deposited in the wall when the house was built, so Mr. Smith is told by persons who knew that they were placed where found.

To all appearances the eggs are sound, though no test has been made. The theory is that when the wall was completed the eggs were in a small, air tight space in which they were preserved.

These three unquestionably are the oldest eggs in the United States, if not in the world, whether suitable for table purpose or not.

ORDERED TO DIE.

Remarkable Story of a Woman Who Paid Husband to Kill Himself.

[Paris Cor., London Leader.

Paris, Tuesday.

Monster! If within 24 hours you have not committed suicide I shall announce you to the police.

ANNA.

Such was the exhilarating epistle which M. Nogues, a machine fitter, received at Rennes, where he was engaged on a job, from his better half. It sells green groceries in the Rue d'Allemagne, Paris.

M. Nogues is a philosopher. He replied that he was quite willing. But he begged for a photograph of his wife and two daughters and a banknote or two, so that he might not be buried like a dog. And he cheerfully signed himself:

Your affectionate husband and father, JEAN-MARIE-LEOPOLD. Instead of dispatching the money by post Mme. Nogues handed it to a brother-in-law M. Legris Benoit, and instructed him to take it to Rennes, see monsieur out of the work, and confirm the same by telegram.

Legris explained his mission on his arrival in the little Breton town, and the two men, who appear to have been excellent friends, proceeded to buy a revolver. They finally bought one for 350 francs—with Mme. Nogues's money.

"Now, I've got to wire your deceased, directly you're gone," said Legris.

"Don't you think it would save you a lot of bother if you were to do so at once?" replied Nogues.

"Happy thought!" said Legris and after much reflection and discussion they sent off the following telegram.

Everything passed off well. Obsequies at Rennes.

The remainder of the day was spent in arranging details. Nogues was in no hurry to leave the world though his brother-in-law kept on giving him gentle hints to "hurry up," as Mme. Nogues must now be ordering mourning.

Nogues insisted on a funeral service, in spite of the fact this is denied to those who die by their own hand. The mechanic's argument was weighty. He did by his wife order not of his own free will. So Legris promised to do his best.

Then the two men went to the cemetery to choose a grave. It was now already evening, the suicide was therefore put off till the morning.

Rising early, the condemned man appeared resigned to his fate. "But," he argued plausibly, "since my wife has given you the money, let us have the funeral breakfast first and then I will at once shoot myself."

Very reluctantly Legris, who had ever the widow in weeds before his mind's eye, consented. Breakfast was long and copious.

Finally Nogues declared he was ready. The two men, now somewhat fuddled, set off for the ceremony outside the town. On the way thither, Nogues suddenly exclaimed. "Why should I not die on the tomb of my parents? They lie at Montfort. Yes, I will rest with them." And the two returned to Rennes. There was no train to Montfort that day, so the dreadful deed was postponed till the morrow, and in the meantime Nogues kept up his courage with a plentiful supper.

Early next day Nogues and Legris took train to Montfort and reached the cemetery. Then a sudden scruple seized Nogues. "Is it not a shame for me to kill myself here? My brother is the parson here!"

So it was decided that the deed should be done at Pantin and the two took tickets for Paris and arrived at Montparnasse station at midnight. Various cafes were visited several hours were spent by Nogues in drawing up his will, and when the two at last separated—very unsteadily—Nogues vowed that his dead body would be found in the morning in Pantin Cemetery.

When his brother-in-law had left him Nogues staggered to the Rue d'Allemagne, knocked up his family and frightened them out of their wits. They thought it was his ghost.

But when Mme. Nogues's eyes were opened to the way in which she had been hoaxed her fury knew no bounds. She at once denounced her husband to the police, preferring the gravest charge against him. Nogues swears he is innocent, and that his wife is merely trying to get rid of him.

"When I saw how extremely anxious my wife was to get me out of the world, I just decided to stay to spite her."

The case is coming before the assize.

A Creeping Death.

Blood poison creeps up toward the heart, causing death. J. E. Stearns, Bell Plaine, Minn., writes that a friend dreadfully injured his hand, which swelled up like blood poisoning. Bucklen's Arnica Salve drew out the poison, healed the wound, and saved his life. Best in the world for burns and sores. 25c at Z. Wayne Griffin, Bro. drug store.

USES FOR CHEESE.

Many Ways in Which This Excellent Food May be Served.

Cheese may well be used as a substitute for meat and is served both uncooked and cooked. The commonest way of using cheese is as layers in other dishes with which the cheese flavor is harmonious. When the cheese is mixed all through the dish in this way an grain is the phrase used to describe it, and potatoes, cauliflower, cabbage and other vegetables are delicious prepared in this way, which is in reality just a plain scallop with cheese added.

Cheese is also an almost indispensable ingredient of all tomato and macaroni paste dishes. Many people use a layer of grated cheese on the top of a variety of baked dishes letting it take the place of a final layer of crumbs. As cheese should only be cooked long enough on top of a dish and perhaps slightly browned it, it is better to wait until the dish is almost cooked before sprinkling on the layer of cheese or to put it on after taking from the oven, says the Cleveland Leader. Left unheated except by the warmth of the cheese flavor, and this is the way it is usually served in Italy, where the idea of using grated cheese in this way originated. The cheese layer can be browned quickly and nicely by means of salamander.

"SAVED MY LIFE"

—That's what a prominent druggist said of Scott's Emulsion a short time ago. As a rule we don't use or refer to testimonials in addressing the public, but the above remark and similar expressions are made so often in connection with Scott's Emulsion that they are worthy of occasional note. From infancy to old age Scott's Emulsion offers a reliable means of remedying improper and weak development, restoring lost flesh and vitality, and repairing waste. The action of Scott's Emulsion is no more of a secret than the composition of the Emulsion itself. What it does it does through nourishment—the kind of nourishment that cannot be obtained in ordinary food. No system is too weak or delicate to retain Scott's Emulsion and gather good from it.

We will send you a sample free.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

INVULNERABLE CRUISERS.

Big Guns on New Gunboats to Test Their Fitness for Service.

An interesting test took place at the naval proving ground at Indian Head the other day in continuation of the series of experiments begun last March to determine the resisting power of the Tennessee class of armored cruisers under the attack of projectiles loaded with various explosives. The six and eight inch guns were used in the test, the striking velocity of the projectiles being those corresponding to ranges from 3,000 to 5,000 yards. The target was a structure built in exact imitation of the side of the Tennessee with all decks, bulkheads, etc., complete. The results were on the whole extremely satisfactory as regards the design of the ship. The damage done by the bursting shells was localized within the compartment where the explosion took place and while the damage to both personnel and material within the compartment would undoubtedly have been very great, the ship as a whole would have been intact at the close of the firing.

As a final test, a 12-inch shell was exploded within a close compartment just above the armored deck. The local effect of that was considerable, but the armored deck was not penetrated.

The test was witnessed by a number of officers of the navy and the army, including the chiefs of the naval bureaus of ordinance and equipment, the acting chief of bureau of construction and repair and the acting chiefs of ordinance and artillery of the army.

An Ox Race.

In many of the out of the way districts of Germany ox racing has long been a very popular sport. The entrance fee for the races is small but the beast must be ridden by their owner. The rider is not allowed to have either whip or spurs and he must ride his animal bareback, trusting to his voice to guide the beast. It is here that the skill of the rider comes into play as everything depends upon the training of the ox and the ability of the owner to direct his movement. As the oxen do not race on a track it is no easy matter to guide them. The race course is a field, perhaps a mile square; the start being made at one side and the finish at the other. Speed is of secondary importance in the race. Like golf, the sport requires accuracy, and the rider who can force his lumbering charger to go in a straight line is certain to win.

When all the competitors are lined up at the starting point the signal to begin the race is given. Then the fun commences, for in spite of the rider's efforts the steeds usually refuse to head toward the finish mark. Besides, the difficulties are greatly increased from the fact that the onlookers are allowed to be in the field and may do anything to interfere with the contestants so long as they do not touch him or his beast. Though oxen are naturally the least excitable of animals the noise of the spectators soon reduces them to a state of utter bewilderment. Often an hour will pass before one of the oxen is ridden under the wire. The victor receives a small money prize, which is nothing compared to the honors brought him by this victory, and the animal is decorated with garlands of flowers. Among the peasants great events are reckoned from the time so-and-so won the ox race.

Saved by Dynamite.

Sometimes, a flaming city is saved by dynamiting a space that the fire can't cross. Sometimes, a cough hangs on so long, you feel as if nothing but dynamite would cure it. Z. T. Gray, of Calhoun, Ga., writes: "My wife had a very aggravated cough, which kept her awake nights. Two physicians could not help her; so she took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which eased her cough, gave her sleep, and finally cured her." Strictly scientific care for bronchitis and La Grippe. At Z. Wayne Griffin, & Bros. drug store, price 50c and $1.00; guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

People are so naturally illogical they are proud of being arrested in an automobile.

There is no such thing as good manners in the world when somebody steps on your corn.

America's early settlers are those who pay up promptly the first of each month.

A woman is so naturally deceptive she can walk further in tight shoes without admitting she is tired than a man can in comfortable ones.

It worries a woman to have money and not be able to spend it as much as it worries a man to spend it and not have the money to pay the bills.

$600 GIVEN AWAY.

Christmas Presents for Subscribers to the Weekly Courier-Journal

The Weekly Courier-Journal (Henry Watterson's paper) wants to share the profits of this prosperous year with its subscribers. It proposes to give away twenty Christmas presents ranging from $100 to $200, amounting to $600 in all. There will be four general presents of $100, $50, $30 and $20, and sixteen presents of $30 and $20 to be given in the states of Kentucky, Indiana, Tennessee, Texas, Mississippi, Missouri, Virginia and Alabama. The plan is fair and simple. Write for the Courier-Journal Company, Louisville Ky., for a copy of the Weekly Courier-Journal, giving full details. It will be sent free.

Philosophy of a Dyspeptic.

The best way to shape the cares of some young men is with a club.

Don't pawn your opportunities.

Some people regard life as a perpetual indignation meeting.

Even when a fellow hasn't an idea in his head he demonstrates that there is plenty of room at the top.

Many a rich bachelor has made a poor husband.

Glittering generalities are the rhinestones of speech.

Make a fuss over a woman's first baby and for the rest of her life she will refuse to listen to anything bad about you.

We should love our enemies as we love ourselves, especially those of us who are our worst enemies.

A wise man may profit by the actions of a fool.

When a woman says she hates to ask her husband for money she may rest assured that it is mutual.

Enough is as a feast, but the average man wants a surplus.

Most of us want to cast our bread upon the water with a string tied to it.

Contentment is the best cure for wrinkles.

If we were all as free with assistance as we are with advice, the world would be different.

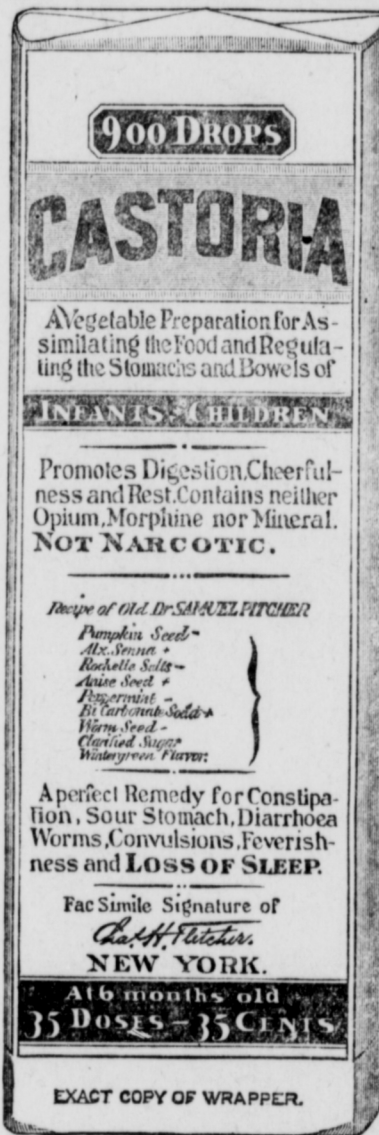

The people with more money than brains naturally have more dollars than sense.

Heaven won't be nearly exclusive enough to suit a lot of people.

HAVE you ever stopped to count the political bosses who received a job in the slats the 7th, inst.

THERE are yet no tidings from the $950 Rosine corruption fund. Can't some one give the defeated candidates at least an inkling?

H. GASSAWAY DAVIS has announced that he is opposed to railway rate legislation and no one appears much surprised.

THE Mormon Senator, Reed Smoot, will likely have to walk the gang plank yet. Here's hoping that he will. Bigamists, even though they be Senators, should be crushed.

OUR contemporary, the Hartford Herald, does not even offer an apology or excuse for the shameful way its late candidates attempted to buy (or steal) the election by means of their vote registers.

THE extending of the civil service rules by Postmaster, General Cortelyou, so as to apply to postmasters of meritorious records is a long step towards ennoblement of the service and will, no doubt, relieve many public officials of the onerous tasks of recommending and choosing these servants.

THE filing of a contest by James Hargis, the oft accused mountain assassin, against his successful opponent, S. S. Taulbee, eminently personifies the story of the drowning man grabbing at a straw. He was defeated by a clean cut majority of over 500 and had he been accustomed to regarding the will of the people he would certainly have abided by the result.

QUITE a number of people have requested us to publish the tabulated vote by precincts of the recent election. This would have been done in our issue following the election if the material necessary to put it into type had not been in use in other matter. After our next issue this material will be released and you may watch our columns for the tabulated official vote on December 8th.

ORGANIZED farmers as a class, both of Ohio and Daviess counties are becoming somewhat disconcerted because the unorganized class as well as a few of those who are organized are selling their tobacco to alleged representatives of the tobacco trusts. They claim, and we think correctly so, that it will help to break the farmers pool and when that is done the price will go back to its former rock bottom figures. It is opportune at this particular time that tobacco growers hang together and act in concert thereby present a strong united demand for equitable prices to every one for their tobacco as well as other products. They can certainly win as other organized labor has if they will only have the patience and endurance.

HAD A CARPET PLAYGROUND

Auctioneer Stretches Fabric on Sidewalk and Children Romp Over It in Gleeful Fashion.

It is not often that Tenth avenue children get a chance to romp on velvet carpets. That opportunity was afforded them the other day by an auctioneer of the neighborhood, says the New York Press. A piece of green carpet that made you feel as though you were walking on moss was stretched for a distance of 20 feet on the sidewalk in front of the auctioneer's store. It lay there for more than two hours. Upon first appearance passersby inclined to turn out and take the street for fear of soiling it; but as the minutes passed and nobody connected with the establishment interfered the timid grow bolder and dared to tread upon the carpet.

They went about it half fearfully at the start. First one foot was set down, tiptoe, then the other followed in the same tentative fashion. Presently the sole of the shoe was allowed to touch the delectable meshes, and by and by the heel descended. After that the trespassers grew brave, and marched right across the patch of velvet as brazenly as if they had been used to carpets three inches thick all their lives.

But it was the children who got the most enjoyment out of the luxury. They swarmed to the spot from adjacent blocks and turned somersaults and played leapfrog till it seemed as if their whole internal composition would be permanently turned upside down. Before that calamity took place, however, two men came out of the store and hauled the carpet in. Why they had paved the sidewalk with it so long was then and still a mystery.

PILGRIMAGE TO LUXEMBURG

Tourist Tells of Annual Journey to Historic Shrine—Afflicted Thousands Seek Cures.

"I have just returned from a visit to my native state of Luxemburg, which I had not seen for more than 30 years," said Heinrich Hirschberg, of New Ulm, Minn., to the Milwaukee Sentinel.

"I arrived in Luxemburg in time to witness the annual pilgrimage to the shrine of St. Wilbrodus, who lived in the middle ages and who was afflicted with St. Vitus dance. It appears that after the death of this saint many miraculous cures of persons similarly afflicted were made at his grave, and at the present time the first Tuesday after Pentecost is set apart as his day.

"Thousands of those afflicted with St. Vitus dance visit his shrine on that day. Those who are so ill as to be unable to attend are represented by their relatives, and this representation is said to be as efficacious as a personal pilgrimage.

"For two or three days before the day of the pilgrimage all the railroads running to the little village where the shrine is located were crowded. The inns and kneipen did an enormous business. On the morning of the trip to the church fully 20,000 afflicted persons or relatives of sufferers formed a line about half a mile from the church. It was an inspiring sight. Ten abreast they formed, those in each ten holding hands. Many bands of music accompanied the procession, which started at a given signal.

"To the tune of a sacred march the procession proceeded on its way, the pilgrims marching slowly with a sort of dance step. Four steps forward and two backward, in rhythmic motion, they made the half mile to the church in a short time. The entrance to the church was made with the greatest reverence, and before the altar, in a metallic casket, lay the corpse of the saint, who has been dead for centuries. The casket was opened enough to permit a view of the body, being provided with hinges for that purpose.

"Each passer looked upon the sacred corpse upon the altar genuflecting and muttering prayers and making the sign of the cross rapidly several times. After all had viewed the coffin the pilgrimage was over."

HORSETHIEF CHARITY FUND

Money Left by "Rustlers" Is Found When Old Woman Who Cared for It Passed Away.

An interesting story is that of what is known as the "Prescott fund" of Prince William's parish, now parts of Hampton and Beaufort counties, South Carolina. It seems that in the early part of the last century an old woman who lived alone in an isolated portion of what was then Beaufort district was on her deathbed, and sent for a lawyer to draw her will to dispose of the little but and few acres of land which she had.

After she had designated to whom these were to go the lawyers told her that to avoid any legal trouble over her will she should insert a clause disposing of whatever else she might have overlooked. She therefore designated that if there should be found anything else belonging to her undisposed of it should be taken in charge of by a certain prominent citizen of Gillisonville as trustee for the use of the white poor of Prince William's parish. Then she died.

When the old woman's household effects were examined for distribution, as she had directed, a quantity of gold and silver coins, said to amount to about $40,000, were found under her mattress. It has always been believed that this money had been given to the old woman by horse thieves, who either had died or been run out of the country and had been afraid to return to get it.

About the early part of last century there were several gangs of horse thieves that operated along the coast of Virginia to Florida; and it was from the hanging of some of these men by a mob, headed by a man named Lynch, in Virginia, that the term "lynch law" is said to have been derived. Mrs. Prescott lived in a very isolated part of the district, and it has always been believed that these thieves used to make her house their stopping place and gave her the money to keep, and that she was afraid to tell of its possession even on her deathbed.

THE MAN-EATERS OF INDIA

Great Tigers Find That Human Beings Are Far Easier to Kill and Better to Palate.

The "man eater" is the jungle nightmare of India, and numerous are the theories to account for its abnormal appetite. Commonly it is said to be an old tiger which has found game too difficult to bring down, or a sickly tiger which has resorted to man killing in its weakness as the easier method, says Outing. The consensus of opinion among experienced hunters and observers is, however, that a man eater is an ex-cattle killer which in conflict with herders, who are often quite brave in defense of their cattle, has discovered how much less work it is to kill a man than cattle, for the cattle killer is usually fat and lazy. Nothing has been found, so far as I have discovered, to suggest appetite for human flesh as the impelling motive, or that man eaters reject all flesh not human, or that the cubs of a man-eating tigress inherit the man-killing propensity. Rather it is a case of contempt for man bred of familiarity, and more often the lust lays hold of the tigress, very likely because in foraging for her cubs (as she does until they begin to hunt for themselves at seven months), and in their defense, she has come more frequently in contact with man; or it may be because the female is more numerous than the male, or because by nature the slyer and more vicious. Certainly she is a fiend incarnate, when every second year she gives birth to cubs, usually two, which do not move about with her until six weeks old; and no doubt her disposition is not improved by the necessity of concealing the youngsters from the tiger, who else would devour them.

Swallow the Koran.

An official report to the British parliament on the condition of Gambia states that, generally speaking, the natives are in good health, which is rather surprising, considering that they rely when ill on the treatment of a native doctor, who, after examining the patient, writes extracts from the Koran in Arabic on a wooden tablet. The tablet is then washed and the water drunk by the patient.

Bountiful Crops, Sleek Herds, Granaries overflowing, Prices good on all Farm Products, Bank Account Swelling, Good Feeling all Around, Everybody Happy.

With this kind of feeling there is no reason why the farmers of this section should not feel good. We are making preparations to supply their needs in our various lines. At this time of the year we are talking Mitchell, Studebaker, and Old Kickory Wagons, which are the leaders in this territory, and we have the prices that are pleasing every one. Remember, we guarantee these wagons to be the strongest and longest lived wagons on the market. Since beginning business we have sold in the neighborhood of 2,000 wagons and we could not have done this if we had not had the best goods in the market and sold them at the right prices.

Fence.

We are general agents also for American field Fence, which is the best fence on the market and stands like a stone wall. The L. H. & St. L. Railroad has contracted for this fence to be placed from one end of their road to the other, which is evidence that they have thoroughly investigated all other fences and decided on this because it is the best. We have some inside prices for you for the next thirty days on all sizes, having just received four carloads and can make some good figures.

JAPAN'S RISE IS RAPID.

That Is Reason for So Many Inquiries Into Characteristics of the Insular Nation.

Not infrequently a man previously unknown to the general public is brought to the front so rapidly by the chain of events that in a few days or weeks the whole world is asking what manner of man he is.

The war between Russia and Japan has placed the oriental nation in the position of this man. Notwithstanding all that was previously known of Japan, it is the events of the last two years which have shown the characters of the people to other nations, which have disclosed the national traits, the ideals and the power to attain them.

Among the things which Japan has accomplished, and which the world now recognizes as accomplished, is the mastery of the principles of western civilization, as well as the knowledge of the results of such civilization. This takes the Japanese out of the category of imitators and places them among the originators.

They learned their naval tactics from England and their military strategy and army organization from Germany, but they have improved upon both examples. They took the most advanced knowledge of hygiene and medicine and surgery, and applied it to the armies in the field; the most modern methods of transportation, and created a wonderful commissariat; the latest results in gunnery and explosives, and made torpedoes, powder and guns still more effective.

So much for their material and military achievements. The showing in the field of ethics and ideals is no less striking. They have displayed a national intent and ability scrupulously to keep their promises, and a national modesty which has prevented boasting. Their ideal of patriotism is so exalted that while men of other nations are willing to die for their country, the Japanese patriot is anxious to die. Moreover, their patriotism is strong enough to enable them to keep the national secrets.

Without professing Christianity, Japan, even in prosecuting war, has displayed a spirit of Christianity so conspicuous as to shame nations which preach more and practice less. Finally, in ending the war, the mikado showed a moderation and humane consideration worthy of the most enlightened ruler.

ONE FROG MADE THE NOISE

Slaughter of Music-Makers Does Not Furnish Repast for Hungry Saloonist's Supporters.

The spellbinder was describing the lamentable condition in which his chief's opponents would find themselves after election.

"They remind me," said he, "of Jake's big frogs' legs dinner. My friend Jake used to keep a little larger beer saloon over in West New York, somewhere near the end of the car line. Out behind the saloon there was a nice big mud pond, which Jake decided, when he bought the place, would be fine for ducks. It was good for the ducks all right, but Jake and the rest of the family, couldn't sleep at night for the noise of the frogs in the pond.

"I'll fix those frogs," said Jake to himself. So he hired a couple of men to come and drain off the pond. Meantime he sent out word to his friends to gather for a dinner, the chief feature of which was to be frogs' legs. Now, you know there's no better eating than frogs' legs fried just right, with beer on the side, so that night about 20 of us gathered in the back room of Jake's saloon.

"There was a big table, with a fine, white cloth, and all the preliminaries went off nicely, but we were hungry for frogs' legs, and told Jake so. He called Maria, his wife. Maria walked in with a big pan carried straight out in her arms. On that pan was a big plate, and on that plate just two legs. Maria put the plate on the table and went out.

"We looked at Jake and Jake looked at us.

"Where are all the frogs' legs?" we demanded.

"There they are," Jake replied. "Only one frog, but a tremendous lot of noise."

Exchange of Territory.

An agreement has been reached between the Belgian and Prussian governments for the cession to Belgium of the neutral territory of Moresnet in exchange for a strip of land adjoining the town of Eupen in Prussia, 11 miles from Aix-la-Chapelle and close to the Belgian frontier. Thus the smallest European state has been blotted out. The existence of Moresnet as an independent state dates from the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle. Later it was under the joint protectorate of Russia and Belgium. The latter country now takes over the entire sovereignty of the territory.

OUR WEEKLY NEW YORK LETTER

A Few Suggestions as to Negligees. Dressing Jackets of China Silk—Japanese Crepe With Butterflies—Chantilly Lace Veils the Newest Capers.

By RENE DEVERAUX.

When in search of a gift for a woman fond of dainty apparel—and, by the way, the Christmas season is close upon us—choose one of this season's charming negligees, and it may safely be said you'll be certain to please. Never have I seen so great a variety of exquisitely made breakfast jackets, becoming dressing sacks, practical bath robes and luxurious lounging gowns, all ready to slip into when the occasion calls for them. So bewitching indeed are they that one is tempted to pardon all manner of extravagance. In fact, some of these are fashioned of materials equally appropriate for evening gowns, while others, quite as effective, are delightfully simple, their chief charm lying in their grace of outline and an artistic manner of trimming. There are crepe de chine negligees with lace insets throughout, plain and be-ruflled, and others simply edged with hand embroidered scallops. Of course the real Japanese crepe kimonos are the handsomest things of the kind to be found.

An exceedingly picturesque one of these was of a soft shade of blue crepe, upon which were embroidered gorgeous butterflies of all sizes and colors, gold with brown tipped wings predominating.

A soft white Japanese crepe was elaborately adorned with hand embroidered storks with outstretched wings, and a less expensive kimono was made of a brilliant shade of crimson crepe cloth with artistic bunches of Japanese chrysanthemums scattered upon it.

A very lovely little dressing sack, which could be easily copied at home, was of pink albatross, side plaited upon a tiny yoke back and front, its low, round neck and elbow sleeves being finished with a dainty buttonhole stitch worked in pink floss. A novel feature was the front yoke fastening, which was formed of broad white satin ribbons laced through four large silk covered rings, the ribbons tied and hanging to the skirt of the gown in front.

The newest breakfast jackets are very short skirted, reaching but a trifle below the waist line. An exceedingly becoming model is shown in the cut. This little negligee is made of rose pink china silk trimmed with a dainty pattern of valenciennes lace inset above the hem and applied in a tiny

READ THIS

Trenton, Ky., Jan. 24, 1905.—Dr. E. W. Hall, St. Louis, Mo., Dear Sir: Please find enclosed $1.00 for one bottle of your Texas Wonder. I used one bottle for kidney and bladder trouble. I want this bottle for my wife. It is a real wonder and one of the greatest medicines in the world. I was passing pure blood and one bottle cured me sound and well. You can use my testimonial and photograph if you wish. Yours truly, R. A. WILLIAMS, Real Estate Agent.

A TEXAS WONDER

One small bottle of Texas Wonder, Hall's Great Discovery, cures all kidney and bladder troubles, removes gravel, cures diabetes, seminal emission, weak and lame backs, rheumatism and all irregularities of the kidneys and bladder in both men and women. Regulates bladder trouble in children. If not sold by your druggist, will be sent by mail on receipt of $1.00. One small bottle is two months' treatment, and seldom fails to cure any of the above mentioned. Sold by all druggists. Dr. E. W. Hall, sole manufacturer, P. O. box 629, office, 2931 Olive Street, St. Louis, Mo.

bolero effect. There is a bit of hand embroidery on the front of the yoke, and the neck is finished with a soft lace ruffle drawn up with pink ribbons run through heading. The short flowing sleeves are fully plaited and finished at the bottom with two rows of inserting above the hem.

A fetching blue albatross gown was strikingly trimmed with rows of narrow black velvet ribbon applied in a Grecian design down the front and extending entirely around the skirt of the gown. This well executed design also edged the flowing sleeves.

For extremely cold weather—in fact, at any time during the winter—there is no fabric more comfortable for lounging robes than soft, pliable English corduroy. This material does not crush and is very delightful to the touch. A luxurious "rest gown" was made of mouse gray corduroy, plainly fashioned and tied with a silver cord and tassel. Where the gown fell open at the bottom a soft lining of china blue silk was disclosed. A rose colored corduroy was lined with a deeper shade of rose.

Those who fancied for a moment that the popularity of the draped veil was on the wane were never more badly mistaken. In Paris veils are more than ever the rage this season. There are a few variations, however, in texture and the mode of wearing them, noticeable among which is to swathe the crown of the hat in its folds scarf fashion. The thin meshed imitation chantilly veil is the present mode, ultra fashionables adopting taupe, the new color, and a darker shade of gray.

NOTICE

Orders Ohio County Court, regular term, November 6th, 1905, Pres. Hon. James P. Miller Judge.

Joe James &c., for motion.

Local option election town of Centertown.

This cause again coming on on this November 6th, 1905, it being the regular November term 1905, Ohio County Court and no exceptions having been filed, the following order is now entered to-wit: On motion of applicants to have an order entered directing that a Local Option election be held in the town of Centertown on December the 8th, 1905, said applicants having their day deposited with the presiding Judge of the Ohio County Court the sum of twenty-five dollars in money an amount sufficient to pay for printing or posting and advertising as provided by law and the fees of the Clerk for making entry in the order book and the Court being sufficiently advised it is ordered and adjudged by the Court that at the last preceding general election in the town of Centertown there were only twenty-one votes cast at said election and that the petition filed herein is signed by twenty-two legal voters residing in said town of Centertown, Ohio county Ky., which is equal to more than twenty-five per cent of the voters cast in said town at the last preceding general election held in and for said town and that said petition was received and filed of record at the regular term of Ohio County Court, October the 2nd, 1905, it is therefore ordered and adjudged by the court that an election be held in the town own of Centertown on the 8th, day of December, 1905, to take the sense of the legal voters of said town who are qualified to vote for county officers upon the question whether or not spirituous, vinous or malt liquors shall be sold bartered loaned or trafficked in, in said town of Centertown, Ohio county Ky., and that Cal P. Keown, Sheriff of Ohio county is ordered and directed to hold said election. He will open a poll at the voting place in said town on said date for the purpose taking the senses of the legal voters of said town who are qualified to vote at elections for county officers upon the proposition, "whether or not spirituous, vinous or malt liquors shall be sold bartered, loaned or trafficked in, in the town of Centertown, Ohio county Ky. It is further ordered and adjudged that a special registration be held in the said town of Centertown, Ohio county Ky., a town of the sixth class on Saturday, December the 2nd, 1905, for the registration of those persons entitled to vote at the special election to be held on December the 8th, 1905, whose names have not been recorded on the registration book for that year and said registration shall be advertised or published in like manner as the time and place of said local option election is required to be published.

A copy attest: M. S. RAGLAND, Clerk, By U. G. RAGLAND, D. C. Pursuant to the foregoing order and judgment of the Ohio County Court, I will on Friday, December 8, 1905, cause a poll to be opened as in the manner required by law at the voting place in Centertown, Ohio county Kentucky, to the sense of the legal voters of said town qualified to vote for county officers, upon the proposition "Whether or not spirituous, vinous or malt liquors shall be sold, bartered, loaned or trafficked in, in the said town of Centertown, Ohio county Kentucky?" Given under my hand as Sheriff of Ohio county Kentucky, this the 21st day of November, 1905.

CAL. P. KEOWN, S. O. C.

STRONG Again

is what Mrs. Lucy Stovall, of Tilton, Ga., said after taking Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. Hundreds of other weak women are being restored to perfect health by this remedy. YOU may be well if you will take it. Indigestion causes nearly all the sickness that women have. It deprives the system of nourishment and the delicate organs peculiar to women suffer—weakens, and become diseased.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure

enables the stomach and digestive organs to digest and assimilate all of the wholesome food that may be eaten. It nourishes the body, and rebuilds the weak organs, restoring health and strength. Kodol cures indigestion, constipation, dyspepsia, sour risings, belching, heartburn and all stomach disorders.
